1. The former German dump located approximately ten kilometers west of Dzialoszyn (T56) is receiving ammunition for Soviet artillery and armored units. The dump consists of underground bunkers distributed over a large wooded area. It has been kept fully stocked since the Russians took occupancy in November 1946, and two to three trains are said to arrive weekly from Russia with additional loads of ammunition.
2. A training ground at Pulawy (Q69) is included in the Warsaw corps area. The installation consists of three separate camps, each accommodating one regiment, located north of the town. The wooden buildings, built on stone foundations, have been camouflaged against air spotting.
3. Of the three camps, the one nearest Pulawy is used by the Polish Army as an officers' school. There are three departments; one for staff officers, one for officers up to the rank of captain, and one for officer candidates. The school can accommodate 400 students.
4. Each of the two other Pulawy camps houses an infantry regiment.
